BY CATHERINE MUINDI (PCO) AND CHARI SUCHE (KNA)

The State Department for Lands and Physical Planning has launched a nationwide initiative to implement the Cashless Revenue Collection Policy across the country.

This initiative is regarded as a crucial step in eliminating cash transactions within Land offices, ultimately leading to a reduction in embezzlement cases.

During the program's inauguration, Mr. Zachariah Njeru, the outgoing Cabinet Secretary for Lands, Public Works, Housing, and Urban Development, (pictured) expressed that the Ardhipay system will enhance service delivery.

"We are doing this because we want to improve service delivery to our citizens. The State Department for Lands and Physical Planning has really worked to see that Kenyans are served fast and efficiently," said Njeru.

The Principal Secretary for

"We want to go cashless in all our registries nationwide in 14 days starting today. For the last three weeks ... it is working"

Lands and Physical Planning Nixon Korir said the program will ensure that no cash is involved in land transactions.

"We want to go cashless in all our registries nationwide in 14 days starting today. For the last three weeks we have rolled out cashless payment at Ardhi House and it is working well," Korir said.

The PS added that the State Department has developed an Ardhipay system that is linked to the E-citizen, which will help in the implementation of the policy.

He noted that the policy mandates the use of digital payment methods (MPESA or banks) for all services,

Mombasa adopts tenant-purchase model to tackle squatter problem

BY SADIK HASSAN AND CHARI SUCHE (KNA)

The Mombasa County Government has embraced the tenant-purchase model as a solution to the longstanding issue of squatters in the coastal county. To implement this approach, the county government, in collaboration with the Ministry of Lands, distributed 1,000 title deeds to squatters in Mikindani Ward on World Habitat Day.

The theme of this year is "Resilient urban economies, cities as drivers of growth and recovery".

Governor Abdulswamad Nassir reiterated his commitment to end the squatter problem in Mombasa during his tenure, with land still being a thorny issue in the Coastal city.

He said his administration has secured necessary financing on behalf of the residents to negotiate with landowners whose land is occupied by squatters.

"The idea will allow squat-fostering accountability, precision, and timely reporting in revenue collection.

Implementation in the 18 offices has demonstrated remarkable improvements in revenue collection.

These include Wundanyi, Kiambu, Murang'a, Ruiru, Thika, Ngong, Kajiado, Eldoret, Mombasa, Kisumu, Trans Nzoia, Machakos, Gatundu, Naivasha, Survey of Kenya, Ardhi House, Yatta, and Kisamis.

To expedite the nationwide transition, Korir noted that the State Department will embark on an extensive 14-day exercise to implement the policy in the remaining 76 Land offices.

This initiative includes the provision of computers and essential ICT equipment and ensuring that all Land offices are well-prepared to implement the policy and embrace the future digitization of Lands services.

Dedicated field office staff, he added, will receive specialized training in cashless revenue collection, ensuring a smooth transition.

Elsewhere, the Kenya Revenue Authority (KRA) has launched an online auction platform to streamline its tax administration procedures for enhanced service delivery and improvement of revenue collection.

The auction, which was previously a physical process is part of KRA's technological strategies after the authority collected Sh37.5 million while piloting the new platform.

Speaking at the launch in Mombasa Custom House, the Cabinet Secretary for The National Treasury and Economic Planning Prof. Njuguna Ndung'u said the platform would boost government efforts to decongest ports and ensure cargo is cleared in a timely and efficient manner.

ters to assume ownership of titles progressively in a tenancy purchase structure guaranteed by the County Government of Mombasa," said Nassir.

"Through the partnership we have with the national government, we will issue 700 titles to Chaani settlement through the Kenya Informal Settlement Improvement Programme (KISIP)," he added.

Nassir urged landowners who received title deeds to utilize them for their own benefits of developing the lands.

The governor said the county government is planning to issue at least 3,000 title deeds in the area.

The Principal Secretary for the State Department for Housing and Urban Development Charles Hinga in a speech read by Mr. Hiram Kahiro hailed Mombasa as a pacesetter in embracing climate change as a key component in addressing urban resilience in the cities for sustainable human settlement and urban development.

"Our cities, municipalities, and towns play pivotal roles as drivers of growth and recovery to the path of a sustainable future by integrating climate change mitigation and adaptation strategies into urban planning and development," PS Hinga said.

Cities, he added, can promote resilient urban economies including supporting sustainable industries, fostering the creation of green jobs, and investing in renewable energy infrastructure.

PS Hinga noted that Mombasa due to its geographical and strategic position as a port of entry to Kenya is prime to implement climate change mitigation actions.

Government to install bulk coolers to support dairy sector

BY MABEL SHIKUKU (KNA)

The Government is investing in bulk cooling and storage infrastructure for the dairy sector to support marketing cooperatives and the farmers in the sector.

Agriculture, Livestock and Fisheries Cabinet Secretary Mithika Linturi has noted that milk is a highly perishable product which needs efficient and orderly measures of collection and cooling, adding that marketing systems are also crucial to the overall viability and profitability of the commercial dairy sector.

Linturi said a cooler will soon be installed in every ward in high milk producing counties which will cushion farmers against losses and spoilage, thus raising their financial capabilities and safeguard milk quality.

Linturi's remarks were contained in a speech read on his behalf by the Deputy Secretary for Administration in the State Department of Livestock Mr. Boniface Simba during the 67th Graduation Ceremony of the Dairy Training Institute (DTI) in Naivasha.

During the graduation, three groups totaling to 198 students who qualified were awarded certificates in Dairy Production and Management, Dairy Technology and Management, and Diploma in Dairy Production and Processing.

The CS observed that Dairy is a very crucial sub-sector as it accounts for about 15 per cent total agricultural sector Gross Domestic Product (GDP) and contributes substantially to the national economy and still aims to play a significant role in achieving the 10 per cent economic growth as stipulated in the Kenya Vision 2030 blue print and is a major source of livelihood for the families of about 1.8 million small-scale farmers for whom dairy farming is a primary activity.

"Consequently, Dairy sub-sector also offers employment to over two million people either directly or indirectly along the milk marketing chain and it accounts for the largest share of livestock contribution to the country's GDP at 3.5 per cent total GDP share as smallholder dairy production accounts for over 70 per cent of total milk produced," Linturi stated.

He said due to the high contribution of the dairy value chain to the economy, the government has chosen to promote dairy as one of the priority areas under the Bottom-up Economic Transformation Agenda (BETA).

Linturi noted that in line with the BETA plan, the Government intends to carry out several interventions in the dairy value chain including doubling milk production per animal and maximizing lactation rates, set-up feed centres for livestock within each cooperative and establish dairy hubs with a variety of Business Development Services (BDS) to farmers that includes animal health, extension services and access to agro vet services among others.

Other interventions include ensuring access to Artificial Insemination (AI) services within the dairy farmer cooperative societies, operationalization of milk processing plants for bulking to improve quality and market access as well as value addition and continual strengthening of the capacity of dairy hub management and farmers through various training, exposure visits and field days.

"To this end, DTI will play a critical role of capacity building among the dairy producers and processors," the CS declared.

He noted that the Dairy sub-sector is facing various challenges namely climate change and recurrent drought, high cost of inputs, low productivity and declining land sizes and seasonality in production among other challenges.

Gov't to improve educational facilities in ASAL areas to reduce dropout rates

BY NELLY KOSGEY (PCO)

The Government is keen on improving educational infrastructure in public secondary schools in Arid and Semi-Arid Lands (ASALS) to cater for the increased enrolment and reduce dropouts.

Marsabit County Commissioner, Mr. Norman Komora said while majority of schools have benefited from infrastructural developments initiated by the national government, a lot more needs to be done to further make learning conducive in the area and ease facility congestion.

Komora, who spoke during an entry meeting of the joint support mission for the implementation of Secondary Education Quality Improvement Project (SEQIP), called on the contractors to expedite the completion of the project. "The State must get value for money from the World Bank-funded programme," he said.

On his part, the Ministry of Education Director for Primary Education Mr. Steven Barongo reiterated the state's commitment to upgrade the existing schools' infrastructure to enable more learners to transit to secondary level.

He, however, stated that there will be no work on site during the national examinations, and asked contractors to increase their human resource to ensure the work is completed on time.

State embarks on social re-integration of reformed inmates back into society

BY MUTURI MWANGI (KNA)

The State Department for Correctional Services is urging Kenyans to accommodate convicts who have served their terms and after their release from penal institutions.

The correctional facilities stakeholders noted that some of the ex-convicts end up going back to prison after they have been released owing to discrimination and stigmatization by society.

The Principal Secretary for Correctional Services Ms Salome Biacco, who was speaking at the Nanyuki GK Prison in Laikipia County during a familiarization tour, said the Prison Department is implementing programmes aimed at making offenders productive members of the society once they are freed from jail.

“Let us help prisoners so that after they are released, they don’t get re-arrested, and this is what the correctional department is trying to do. Accept them back into society,” the PS said.

She noted that the correc-ing their items.

“We encourage you to come and buy the merchandise made by those behind bars. Part of that income is channeled to train them to ensure after they have been released from jails, they can earn a living,” Ms Biacco said. She further called on more partners to join hands and support the correctional facilities in the country through counseling and rehabilitation.

Kephis trains farmers to access international markets

BY ALICE WANJIRU (KNA)

Farmers in Elgeyo Marakwet County will be trained on the requirements needed to access international markets.

The Kenya Plant Health Inspectorate Service (Kephis) Managing Director Prof. Theophilus Mutui said his organisation will support farmers to export their mangoes and avocados among other products, by ensuring that they are free from diseases.

“We will also issue them with the necessary certification so that their goods can access various markets across the world,” he said.

Speaking in Iten after meeting with county officials led by Governor Wisley Rotich, the MD said the organisation in partnership with other agencies has in the past three weeks managed to open an avocado market for India where they are targeting a population of 500 million people.

He continued to say that these are people living in Indian cities who are potential buyers of Kenyan avocados where three avocados are being sold at an equivalent of Sh2,000.

Prof. Mutui further said the country has also been given access to the avocado market in China, which is the second most populous nation in the world, as well as Mauritius adding that new markets could be opened in the USA, South Korea and South Africa among others.

Noting that fruit flies were a major challenge in the county, Kephis Chairman Joseph M’Uthari said the experts will work with farmers to eradicate the flies so that their products can be certified fit for export.

New industrial park in Garissa to create 1,000 jobs and drive industrialization

BY ERICK KYALO (KNA)

Garissa County and the larger North Eastern region will benefit from the upcoming Sh500 million Garissa County Aggregation and Industrial Park (CAIP) through job creation and industrialisation.

The project, the first industrial park in the area since independence, is projected to be completed in the next nine months with the county and the national government each contributing Sh250 million. It will also create at least 1,000 job opportunities for the local people and benefit thousands of farmers at the same time hence reducing poverty levels in the Arid and Semi Arid Region.

Speaking after launching the project, the out-going Trade Cabinet Secretary Moses Kuria said the main objective of the industrial parks was to grow manufacturing and investments through agro-industries.

The CS further said the venture will enhance productivity of the agriculture sector in a sustainable manner, hence creating inclusive decent jobs, increasing farmers' income, increasing foreign exchange and stimulating growth at the grassroots as part of the government's Bottom-Up Economic Agenda. "There has never been any industry in this region since independence. I am very happy that today I am presiding over the groundbreaking of the first-ever industrial park. I am surprised that people in Garissa are growing sunflower, rice, tomato, watermelon, and other cash crops that are doing very well. However, 60 pc of your produce gets wasted in between getting it from the farms to the market," Kuria said.

DIRECTOR GENERAL

MINISTRY OF INFORMATION, COMMUNICATIONS AND THE DIGITAL ECONOMY

PUBLIC NOTICE

CALL FOR REGISTRATION FOR A VIRTUAL PUBLIC VALIDATION FORUM FOR NATIONAL ADDRESSING SYSTEM OF KENYA (NASK) POLICY AND BILL

The Ministry through a Multi-stakeholder Committee has developed a draft National Addressing System of Kenya (NASK) Policy & Bill. This policy seeks to promote the benefits of a National Addressing Framework to provide for standardized naming, numbering and allocation of addresses for all addressable objects such as streets, properties, parcels of land, buildings, and water bodies in Kenya to facilitate identification and location.

Establishing a Standardised National Addressing System in Kenya will enhance public service delivery, promote e-commerce, spur economic growth and contribute to the nation's digital transformation ecosystem.

The policy provides the foundation for the NASK Bill which establishes the legal, institutional, and regulatory framework for Addressing in Kenya.

The Draft Policy and Bill have been subjected to the public consultation process and the comments received have been considered in the final documents.

The Ministry therefore invites relevant stakeholders, members of the public, and all interested parties, to a Virtual Validation Forum to validate the draft instruments for the next processes. The validation forum will be held on Wednesday, 18th October 2023 at 9:00 am.

The draft Policy and Bill are available at the following link:-

Ministry partners with universities to conduct research on value of minerals

BY CHARI SUCHE (KNA)

Plans are underway to work with universities and mining stakeholders to conduct research to establish economic value of minerals available in the country.

The Mining, Blue Economy and Maritime Affairs Cabinet Secretary Salim Mvurya said the ministry is working with universities to help in capacity building, research and training of engineers and geologists.

He said they have also grouped the minerals into industrial and strategic, which need a lot of research, thus requesting universities to work with the ministry to establish the value of value addition in the country.

Speaking during a Kenyan-German Centre of Excellence for Mining, Environmental, Engineering and Resource Management (CEMEREM) conference in Mombasa, Mvurya said the mining sector is very important in Kenya as the government strives to move the revenues from one per cent of Gross Domestic Product (GDP) to 10 per cent in the next three years.

He said they will be

“We want to modernize the laboratory so that we can solve the issue of sampling – Mvurya working with stakeholders and investors, adding that they have set up a meeting in two weeks for all the mining stakeholders in a bid to enable the sector to be a lucrative business free from cartels.

The CS noted that the mining sector, for the last five years has had a moratorium to protect the national interests and to also do geo-surveys across the country.

Mvurya said the Cabinet has consequently decided to lift the moratorium, therefore inviting stakeholders and investors who want to apply for prospective mining licenses to do so.

He said the ministry is also working on mineral value addition and processing policy which is very instrumental in growing the mining sector.

“We want to modernize the laboratory so that we can solve the issue of sampling and testing which has been a challenge,” Mvurya said. He said they will make sure the lab in Madini House in Nairobi can be accredited internationally and then move in to decentralize lab services across the country.

“It is critical to work with universities in this so that they can have their input in the process,” he added.

He noted that the government has also decriminalized artisanal mining and is looking forward to working with Taita Taveta University on trading, with the artisanal miners and universities playing a key role in updating their skills.

New biotechnology engineering and research center to set up base in Kenya

BY ANNE MWALE (KNA)

Kenya's profile as a research and technology hub will soon receive a major boost as the International Centre for Genetic Engineering and Biotechnology (ICGEB) gets poised to operationalize its first Regional Research Centre (RRC) in Africa.

The ICGEB Regional Research Centre which will be domiciled at Egerton University's main campus in Njoro Sub-County which will be the second such outfit in the world after the one in China, will specialize in food safety and molecular plant breeding.

Speaking after inspection of facilities that will host the RRC by a team of officials from ICGEB led by its Director Prof. Ramesh Venkata Sonti, Egerton University Chancellor Prof. Isaac Kibwage disclosed that the center is set to also foster on-going and future cutting-edge, research in genetic biofortification, development of molecular diagnostic tools and their applications and bioprospecting for biopesticides and bioactive compounds.

The ICGEB board which runs 46 state-of-the-art laboratories in Trieste, Italy, New Delhi, India and Cape Town in South Africa has also approved the appointment of National Commission for Science, Technology and Innovation (NACOSTI) Director General Professor Walter Oyawa as ICGEB Governor for Kenya.

During the 22nd session of the ICGEB Board of Governors held in Cape Town in 2016, it was decided to explore possibilities of setting up ICGEB- RRC in Africa. Subsequently, during the Annual General Meeting in December 2020, ICGEB Board resolved that Kenya was to host the RRC within its territory.

Gov't procures 100 dryers to support maize farmers in reducing losses

BY JUDY TOO(KNA)

The Government, through the Ministry of Agriculture has instituted various measures to reduce crop post-harvest losses in the wake of the bumper harvest expected following the long rains and the application of the subsidized fertilizers that it provided to farmers.

Speaking in Uasin Gishu County during a tour of National Cereals and Produce Board (NCPB) depots, the out-going Principal Secretary for Crop Development Kello Harsama, noted that the government has procured 100 dryers to help farmers dry their maize and reduce post-harvest losses.

The PS, who has since been moved to ASAL and the Regional Development State Department in the same capacity said farmers in North Rift are expected to harvest over 23 million bags of maize, noting that NCPB has the capacity to store the produce during the harvesting period.

He asked cereal farmers not to fall prey to brokers who want to purchase their produce at a throwaway price in the wake of a bumper harvest in maize-growing regions.

Harsama noted that there was no cause for alarm over the delay by the government to announce the maize price per 90 kilogrammes as the government would make public the minimum buying price for the maize produced.

He regretted that some farmers had fallen prey to brokers from neighboring countries who were offering them Sh3,500 per 90kg bag of maize.

"Don't be deceived that the market price of maize will drop due to the delay by the government to announce the minimum buying price for your maize produce," he assured.

State launches Talanta Hela initiative to support youth in arts and sports

BY MONICA OMORO (PCO)

The Government has initiated multiple programs and allocated resources to empower young people to develop and elevate their artistic pursuits. One such flagship project is Talanta Hela, which encompasses a grassroots talent identification, scouting, and talent nurturing program nationwide.

Mr. Ismail Maalim Madey, the Principal Secretary of the State Department of Youth Affairs and the Arts, explained that through the Talanta Hela Initiative, individuals identified with exceptional talents in sports are given opportunities to advance at the Kenya Academy of Sports, while those with artistic talents are connected to various creative opportunities they can explore and leverage.

To achieve this feat, Madey who was speaking during the launch of the KCA University Cultural Week in Nairobi said the Department was expanding and revamping the Kenya Cultural Centre popularly known as the Kenya Na-cultural shows.

"We are also investing in innovation hubs across the country where young people can hone their skills in cultural and creative innovative ventures.

"I encourage university students to pursue their passions and dreams in the Orange Economy and innovation," said the PS.

From visual, the PS added, theatre and the film industry, dance and music, there are great opportunities to take advantage of youth skills and talents to monetise, create jobs and contribute to the growth of the national economy adding that content creation has become a digital avenue for creating revenue streams and young people have immense opportunities to take advantage of.

He added, that the State Department was also refurbishing the Nairobi Film Centre (formerly the Nairobi Cinema) to a state of the art film screening centre which is billed the biggest in the region with a capacity of 850 seats in order to present a unique opportunity to present cultural shows and films and make money.

He added, "We also have government policies and programs aimed at supporting the Orange Economy. and I am happy to report that two weeks ago, we hosted the first ever State of the Film Industry Summit in the history of Kenya and we are pushing for progressive policies and proposing incentives that will make Kenya an attractive filming destination".

Artistes urged to unite to benefit more from the creative economy

BY SADIK HASSAN

Artistes in the creative industry have been urged to establish structures to reap maximum benefits from the sector.

The State Department for Youth Affairs and the Arts Principal Secretary (PS) Ismail Madey said the creative economy is largely disorganized compared to other sectors like sports which have well-established structures.

“We are fond of saying this economy generates a certain percentage of the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) of our nation which if we ask the sector leaders how that is arrived at nobody can explain. It is something that is hypothetical – a theory that has not been measured,” the PS said.

The Government, he added, is encouraging various stakeholders in the creative economy to join associations and form formidable structures to speak as forums and get support from the state.

“For musicians, the government is engaging the collective management organisations (CMOs) to make sure they put up proper infrastructure and digitize their way of collecting royalties for the musicians so that they can benefit from their work,” he said, adding that the Kenya Film and Classification Board will come up with a mechanism to facilitate the airing of local films.

The government has a standardised compensation for artistes and those who perform in various state events are now paid using approved rates by the Salaries and Remuneration

Commission (SRC).

“I call on all artistes to unite and join associations where they can speak with one voice on this crucial matter of compensation. I also dare you not to accept anything less than what has been approved by SRC,” the PS said.

Speaking at the Pwani Innovation Week at Swahilipot Hub, the PS urged youths to challenge the status quo and bring forth innovations that will stimulate the economy.

“While innovation is important, alone, it is not enough,” he said.

IGAD validates five year regional plan to enhance peace and security

BY ERASTUS GICHOHI
(KNA)

The Inter-governmental Authority on Development (IGAD) has validated the Regional Plan of Action and Common Position that will provide a road-map towards unlocking the full potential and address myriad of challenges facing the region.

The regional body identified four key thematic areas of interest that the five-year plan seeks to address including regional cohesion and cooperation, socio-economic development, maritime and terrestrial matters, research, technology, and innovation as well as capacity building.

IGAD termed the implementation of the Regional Plan of Action (RPA) as key to the achievement of IGAD peace and security regional strategy especially in safeguarding the interests of member states and strengthening their cooperation on safety issues in the Red Sea and Gulf of Aden area.

According to Ambassador Moi Lemoshira, the Director General at the Kenya State Department of Foreign Affairs, there is need for a common action that safeguard the political, economic and security interests and stability of the region population.

The ambassador decried the rising costs of conflicts in the region that has seen diversion of developmental resources towards addressing conflicts and insecurity.

Speaking to ambassadors from IGAD member states, Lemoshira affirmed Kenya's commitment towards enhancing trade, shipping and navigation operations in the Red Sea and Gulf of Aden and Somalia (RESGAS) to unlock the full potential of the maritime resources.

State to provide title deeds to empower communities and reduce land disputes

BY BERNADETTE KHADULLI
(KNA)

The Government is committed to transitioning all group ranches to community land in an effort to empower communities to register and develop their pieces of land.

The Principal Secretary for the State Department of Lands and Physical Planning, Mr. Nixon Korir said the Government will provide communities with title deeds through the titling program to enable them to benefit from development projects in their areas.

Korir said communities have been losing benefits and at times compensation from development projects due to lack of title deeds.

Korir said the Department of Lands and Physical Planning, in collaboration with the National Lands Commission (NLC), has prioritized the issuance of titles and the transitioning of group ranches to community land to enable communities to register their parcels and geo-reference them for development purposes.

The PS further said the Community Land Act, of 2016 was passed to give effect to the provisions of Article 63(5) of the 2010 Constitution that all undissolved group ranches be transitioned to communities adding that to date a total of 309 inventory and undissolved group ranches have been submitted to the ranches have transitioned to communities and have been issued with fresh title deeds under the Land Registration Act, 2012," he said, and added that the transitioned land includes 21 in Samburu, 13 in Laikipia, five in West Pokot, five in Taita Taveta and two in Kakamega respectively.

A case study conducted by NLC in collaboration with NAMATI Kenya has revealed that the progress on transitioning group ranches across the country to community land is slow, indicating that by May 2023, only 46 out of 315 group ranches nationally had fully transitioned in a survey that began in 2017.

The PS, who was speaking during the launch of the report on the 'monitoring the transition of group ranches to community land in Kenya' at a Nairobi hotel said the number of transitions from group ranches to community land is low, a need that calls for all stakeholders to work closely to alleviate the challenges hindering the transition.

Kenya and China join forces to curb fake news, promote accurate reporting

BY JOSEPH KAMOLO (KNA)

Kenya and China will collaborate on a program designed to counter fake news and propaganda in order to build the true image of the two nations.

Xinhua Sub-Saharan Africa Bureau in Nairobi Leader Mr Lee Xin has asked the Kenya News Agency to join hands in supporting each other to build the image of Kenya in China and around the world and reverse the same by building the image of China in Kenya and around the world.

Xin said this when the New Director of Information, who is also Head Kenya News Agency, Mr Joseph Kipkoech led a team of officers drawn from the Department on an informal familiarisation tour at the Chinese Xinhua News Agency Sub-Saharan Africa Bureau in Nairobi.

The Chinese Xinhua News Agency extended invitation to their Kenyan counterpart KNA to spearhead counter-fake news and propaganda by reporting facts based on research to build a true image of the two nations and strengthening its relations to spur economic growth in the country.

"We will work closely with Xinhua to provide detailed media coverage on infrastructure development, climate change, ICT, education and security. Kenya is particularly focused on the development of roads under the Forum on China Africa Cooperation," said Xin.

"Investment in this sector will spur economic growth and create jobs for the people under Kenya's Bottom-Up Economic Transformation Agenda. We are friends of Kenya and Africa, you are our friends and comrades help each other," he said.

The two state owned media agencies have a long history of partnerships and collaborations sharing a unique common heritage of Kenya-Chinese media relations since their inception in the 1930s.

The partnerships and collaborations between the two state news agencies is at a crucial stage when final touches are underway to renew the agreements for news and information exchanges ahead of President William Ruto's visit to China before the end of the year.

He noted that prevalent fake news industry is a rebellion by unemployed youth who flourish through technology generated income from online marketing where one earns depending on the number of people they reach.

"This create grounds for the youth to generate content and share online to attract attention of the reader with unverified or twisted facts and information leading to misinformation, disinformation and deep fakes," he said.

This year 2023 marks the 60th anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic ties between the People's Republic of China and the Republic of Kenya. The friendly relations and cooperation between the two countries continue to deepen.

Kenya and China have close high-level exchanges. President Dr William Ruto is scheduled to pay a state visit to China and have talks with President Xi Jinping among other top leadership in the country.

Nyeri County explores agri-tourism to market its coffee

BY WANGARI MWANGI (KNA)

As the coffee sub-sector continues to grapple with shake-ups that have seen the Nairobi Coffee Exchange (NCE) continue to record dismal performance in the last two months, players in the coffee sector in Nyeri have decided to explore agri-tourism as the new frontier to sell their coffee.

Agri-tourism is a form of commercial enterprise that links agricultural production and processing with tourism to attract visitors into an agricultural business for the purposes of entertaining and educating the visitors while generating income for the farmer.

The county is gearing to host the Nyeri International Coffee Expo (NICE) which is set to take place between November 5 to November 11. The expo which has been dubbed "Nyeri Coffee Origin Trip" will act as the first ever linkage that will see coffee buyers from 20 countries interact directly with 5,000 coffee farmers from Nyeri county.

According to the NICE managing director, Simon Mburu, the visiting buyers will have a chance to visit coffee estates to familiarize themselves with the coffee harvesting process. They are also set to visit coffee mills for a firsthand experience on how the cherry is converted to parchment.

To top it all up, Mburu noted that the participants will have an opportunity to sample the different coffee aromas that Nyeri has to offer during the cupping exercise before transacting business directly with the farmers.

"We have confirmed 20 coffee buyers from Germany, United Kingdom, United States, the United Arab Emirates, Egypt, South Africa and Turkey and all these people are coming to meet the farmers and do business with them," stated Mburu.

Speaking in his office when signed the memorandum of understanding with NICE to enable planning and pilot implementation of the Nyeri Coffee Origin Trip, Nyeri Governor Mutahi Kahiga lauded the organizers for their ingenuity.

Health Ministry steps up polio vaccination to address outbreak in North Eastern region

BY JOSEPH NG'ANG'A (KNA)

The Government has enhanced efforts to curb the spread of polio in the country after some cases were reported in the North Eastern region.

Public Health and Professional Standards Principal Secretary Ms Mary Muriuki said that the Ministry has put in place all the necessary measures to ensure a smooth polio vaccination campaign has been on going for a few weeks.

Speaking in Nairobi during a media and stakeholders meeting on the upcoming polio vaccination campaign, Ms Muriuki said this is the second of the three planned vaccination rounds following polio outbreak confirmation in Garissa County in June this year.

"Recently, I reported that we had confirmed six cases, and we were going to conduct an emergency polio vaccination campaign in four counties. Sadly, there are clear indications that transmission of the virus is still active in Garissa

Public Health and Professional Standards Principal Secretary (PS) Ms. Mary Muriuki speaking in Nairobi during a media and stakeholders meeting on the upcoming vaccination campaign.

County especially within the refugee camps," Ms. Muriuki said.

She said the MoH

The upcoming round will target 10 high risk counties among them Mandera, Wajir surveillance system has detected an additional two polio cases, bringing the total number to eight.

"The ministry, in collaboration with county governments and partners successfully undertook round one of polio campaigns from 24th to 28th August 2023 in four counties namely Kiambu, Kajiado, Garissa and Nairobi where a total of 1,960,748 of children under five years were vaccinated, out of a target of 1,879,402 children," Ms. Muriuki said.

She said that this translates to 104.2 per cent coverage as she lauded all parents, guardians, religious leaders, media, partners and all members of the public for supporting the noble course.

"The upcoming round will target 10 high risk counties namely Mandera, Wajir, Tana River, Lamu, Kitui, Machakos, Kiambu, Kajiado, Nairobi and Garissa," she said.

According to the PS, the campaign is targeting 3,119,158 children under five years of age in all the targeted sub-counties.

"For a long time, it has been assumed that polio largely affects children under five years of age. However, the confirmation of the virus in a seven-year-old child re-affirms that polio is a threat to all persons irrespective of age in areas where population immunity is compromised," the PS said.

Kenya inches closer to achieving Universal Health Coverage

BY JUDY SHERI (PCO)

The Ministry of Health is inching closer to achieving the Universal Health Coverage (UHC) following the operationalization of Primary Health Care Networks (PCNs) in counties to provide Kenyans with accessible and integrated health care services.

According to the Principal Secretary for Public Health and Professional Standards, Ms Mary Muriuki, the PCNs are heralding a new era of comprehensive and integrated healthcare delivery besides shaping the country's healthcare landscape.

Ms Muriuki, who was speaking in Nairobi, revealed that through these special PCNs, the ministry intends to deploy at least one network in each of Kenya's 47 counties by October 20th.

Through the PCNs concept, the PS said, health indicators particularly in reproductive, maternal, child, and adolescent health (RMCAH) are expected to improve.

"PCNs promote appropriate use of healthcare resources and facilitate efficient referrals, reducing congestion in tertiary healthcare facilities," Ms Muriuki said.

"We are resolutely committed to ensuring that every Kenyan has access to high-quality healthcare services and to achieve this, we are working tirelessly to establish PCNs in every county," PS Muriuki declared.

Currently, the PS said, 34 counties have already forged partnerships with various stakeholders to support the establishment of the PCNs in their areas of jurisdiction.

She added that significant efforts are underway to mobilize resources for extending the PCNs initiative to all the counties.

Sh2.3b health equipment to be installed at Nakuru Referral Hospital

BY ESTHER MWANGI
(KNA)

Health care services at the Nakuru County Referral and Teaching hospital will receive a major boost following the scheduled equipping and operationalization of the new ultra-modern outpatient facility.

The facility will be operationalized at a cost of Sh2.35 billion courtesy of United States Agency for International Development (US-AID).

The standalone complex constructed at a cost of Sh600 million is part of the Sh1 billion facelift that the county government has been carrying out at the referral hospital in response to the increased number of patients seeking services at the facility.

County Executive Committee Member (CECM) for Health Services Ms Jacqueline Osoro said the USAID-funded project will be undertaken by Stand-med, a private healthcare technology company.

The outpatient complex, Ms Osoro explained is equipped with a pharmacy, X-ray machines and modern laboratories which will cater for more patients, adding that they were experiencing an increased influx of referrals from other hospitals and health centres within the larger Rift Valley.

“Our strategy is not only to cope with the numbers but mainly to offer quality and affordable disease diagnostic, management and treatment services,” the CECM said.

She said the referral hospital serves more than eight counties in the South Rift region including Bomet, Kericho, Samburu, Baringo, Nyandarua, and Laikipia where 2,000 patients are said to be treated daily, 750 of them being inpatients.

Ms Osoro was speaking when she led a team from Stand-med healthcare technology company led by its Chief Executive Officer Mr Ian Okello, on a tour of the referral and teaching hospital.

She noted that the outpatient facility was part of the county government’s efforts to revamp the county’s health sector to ensure improved efficiency in emergency response.

The CECM indicated that huge investments in outpatient health facilities are still needed to improve health services across the devolved unit, pledging that the county administration would continue looking for avenues to increase budgetary allocation to improve the provision of health care services.

Osoro noted that malaria, diseases of the respiratory system, skin diseases, diarrhoea, and intestinal parasites were major challenges at outpatient facilities around the county.

Government to equip TVETs and create employment opportunities

BY BENSON KELIO AND CHRISTOPHER KIPROP (KNA)

Cabinet Secretary (CS) for Education Ezekiel Machogu has said that the government is in talks with China for assistance in equipping 70 Technical and Vocational Education and Training (TVET) institutions countrywide.

Speaking when he officially presided over the 28th graduation ceremony for Moi Teachers College, Baringo, Machogu revealed that President Dr. William Ruto will be visiting China to ratify the deal which will also seek to secure employment opportunities for language teachers in the Asian country.

He noted that apart from China, there are so many countries within Africa and beyond that are in need of a labour force that Kenya can capitalize on.

The CS challenged middle-level colleges and universities to train learners not only for local demand but also for global jobs.

Machogu said the government has invested Sh.630 billion this year alone in the education of Kenyans and the country must get a return for the resources that have been put into the critical sector.

“As President Ruto usually says, we must be decisive, influential, deliberate and ensure that we must come up with specific programs to ensure that all our graduates have something to do after school,” he said.

The Education CS encouraged continuing learners to study up to their highest level of education urging them not to lose hope in life as the economic condition will improve.

“When you see an advertisement for some of these foreign countries jobs just apply them because you can still work there while you are still in touch with your families,” he stated.

He called on Kenyans to support the government’s agenda saying the president has worked hard to restore the economy.

Baringo Central MP Joshua Kandie in his remarks urged local leaders to play their role in supporting the youth to access the available opportunities in the country and beyond.

Kandie noted that the youth only need to get the requisite training and ensure they have their certificates with them since the opportune time will come.

The legislator disclosed an upcoming advertisement for the workforce for the multi-billion Kirandich dam phase two project in his constituency where he noted that there are over 100 job opportunities for plumbers, excavation workers, and other cadres.

The event saw 305 new teachers graduate with up-graded Diplomas in Primary Teacher Education (DPTE), Primary Teacher Education, and Certificate in Early Childhood Development Education (ECDE).

Inua Jamii bill to hit Sh3.5 billion as more enlist

Government to spend the money every month as it seeks to cushion the vulnerable, who include the elderly, orphans and persons with disabilities

BY AGENDA KENYA WRITER

The government's spending on social protection that targets the elderly, orphans and persons with disabilities is set to rise to about Sh3.5 billion every month following the conclusion of registration of new beneficiaries.

The government, through the Department of Social Protection, disburses every month some Sh2.1 billion to slightly over a million beneficiaries across the country.

In September, the government released Sh2.09 billion to 1.04 million beneficiaries enrolled in the cash transfer programme known as Inua Jamii, according to the department.

Each beneficiary gets Sh2,000 which is sent to them mainly via a registered mobile phone number.

And in August, the department released Sh2.08 billion to the 1.04 million beneficiaries, with the payment being made promptly at the end of every month.

In the just-concluded registration, the government had targeted to enroll some 700,000 people.

With each beneficiary getting Sh2,000 every month, the monthly spending on the welfare programme is set to rise by Sh1.4 billion to hit Sh3.49 billion as the government moves to cushion the vulnerable in the society.

The cash transfer initiative, according to President William Ruto, is meant to enable the vulnerable have decent lives.

In July, the President assured that the government will disburse the funds on time - at the end of every month, even before the salaries of public workers have been paid.

The government has kept its word on this, with the social protection department every 29th day of each month disbursing the cash to the over a million beneficiaries.

"Older citizens, orphans and vulnerable children, as well as people living with extreme disability, have a right to receive support now, and it is grossly unjust to wait even one moment, for any reason," the President said at the social protection conference in April.

He added that the bottom-up economic transformation agenda stands on the foundation of creating sustainable capacities and viable opportunities for the empowerment of people at the base of our socioeconomic pyramid.

He explained that the government was simultaneously pursuing rapid economic transformation and social protection.

"Social protection cannot wait until 2030, when we will have achieved our economic vision. If it does, the development achieved at the expense of, or in exclusion of social protection, will be hollow and fragile," he said.

The government in September kicked off the registration of new persons in the social welfare programme, targeting some 700,000 older persons, orphans and persons with disabilities.

Registration closed on September 30 after being extended on September 15 to allow more potential beneficiaries to enroll.

As at mid-September, registration stood at 600,000, according to the Labour and Social Protection CS Florence Bore.

In an update, Bore noted that older persons led in new registrations at 371,725, followed by orphans at 167,575 and the rest were persons with disabilities.

One of the counties that led in registration is Makueni, where over 37,000 potential beneficiaries were registered.

County Coordinator for Social Development Daniel Kitheka said with the new listings, the county now had some 66,250 people enlisted in the cash transfer programme.

"The new beneficiaries were registered by our officers at either sub-county or at chief's offices across the county," said Kitheka. "The next step will now be the beneficiaries open bank accounts."

Nyeri County had registered 26,606 new beneficiaries for the Inua Jamii programme when the exercise closed on September 30, according to County Children Officer Mwaniki Kung'u.

"We have forwarded the data to the headquarters for cleaning. It is after this process has been concluded that we shall get direction on the way forward," he said.

In Busia County, over 20,000 people were registered, according to County Coordinator for Social Services David Chepkwony.

He said his team would visit each of the enlisted persons to verify their details and upload them in the system.

Most areas had exceeded their targets during the registration period, including Rachuonyo South sub-county, even before the government extended the recruitment period.

And as the benefits of the programme become apparent, many are suggesting that the age for older persons should be reduced from 70 to 60.

Ganda MCA Oscar Wanje said the set minimum age - 70 - had locked out many would-be potential beneficiaries.

"The minimum age is too high. Many persons aged 65 to 68 are also in need," he said.

The PS for Social Protection and Senior Citizen Affairs Joseph Motari said that the government will give full support to vulnerable people in the society so that they live a decent life.

He added that there is a relationship between disability, old age and poverty. "If we give money to older people, poverty decreases and, therefore, many of them will live more years because they will be able to buy food and medicine for themselves so that they can live with dignity in their old age", he said.

Mr Motari said to save the beneficiaries the struggle to access their money, the government will disburse it through mobile phone services.

Most elderly persons had been forced to travel to towns to access their stipends from registered financial institutions including banks and micro-finance. The movement was a big challenge, especially to those with disabilities.

"Once this exercise ends, in six months time, the beneficiaries will be getting their stipends through their mobile phones. This will be a great relief, especially to our sick and physically challenged elderly people," stated the PS. ■

KRA unveils online auction to streamline revenue collection

THE NEW KENYA Revenue Authority auction platform is expected to boost tax administration procedures and improve revenue collection.

The auction, which previously was done manually, was seen as lacking transparency, according to the Cabinet Secretary National Treasury and Economic Planning, Prof Njuguna Ndung'u, who launched the platform.

He noted that the platform that has collected Sh37.5 million during piloting would boost government efforts to decongest ports and ensure cargo is cleared in a timely and efficient manner.

Prof Ndung'u said that the government is cognizant of the current changing environment and will continue to support private businesses to adapt through reforms.

KRA commissioner general Humphrey Wattanga said the online auction would give taxpayers the opportunity to appreciate the bidding process. He noted that the auction process would be faster and accessible to registered taxpayers countrywide and globally.

Revenue collection has progressively increased in the last five years from Sh1.58 trillion in FY2018/2019 to Sh2.17 trillion in 2022/23, representing a growth of 37 per cent in five years. ■

State targets 3.1m children in new polio campaign

THE GOVERNMENT IS targeting to vaccinate 3.1 million under-five children in 10 counties in the second round polio vaccination campaign that runs until October 11.

The targeted counties are Nairobi,

Public Health PS Mary Muthoni.

Kiambu, Kajiado, Machakos, Kitui, Tana River, Garissa, Lamu, Wajir, and Mandera, according to State Department of Public Health and Professional Standards PS Mary Muthoni.

The PS said the Ministry of Health is conducting the campaign dubbed nOPV2 Supplemental Immunisation Activity (SIA) with support from the Global Polio Eradication Initiative (GPEI) and various other partners.

Dr Emmanuel Okungu, the Head of Disease Surveillance and Response Unit in the ministry, said in the first campaign conducted in August, the government targeted 1.8 million children but reached 1.9 million.

"There are still more children we have missed, and we must reach them in this nOPV2 campaign," he said.

Dr John Burton, a Senior Public Health Officer at the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), said there is a correlation between spread of polio and climate change.

"The best way is to maintain high surveillance at the border points to prevent its transmission to other places. We will continue to support Kenya to achieve their target to eradicate polio," he said.

Kenya, with other countries in the region, remain at risk of imported poliovirus from Somalia, which has health system challenges. ■

Regional judges call for increased cooperation to end transborder crimes

Deputy CJ Philomena Mwilu, CJ of the Federal Supreme Court of Ethiopia, Tewodros Kebede (centre) and Justice Smokin Wanjala sign Communique on Adjudicating Transnational Organised Crime and Illicit Financial Flows.

They say there is need for more collaboration in evidence gathering to enable countries deal with crimes like human trafficking and money laundering

BY AGENDA KENYA WRITER

Judges from across the region have called for increased cooperation and partnerships among justice institutions to end transnational crimes.

The judges who held a three-day meeting in Mombasa noted that lack of cooperation has made courts find it harder to deal with crimes like terrorism, money laundering and human trafficking, which transcend borders.

“When it comes to transboundary organised crimes, it doesn’t matter how countries are well-organised. We can never succeed until we work together,” said Chief Justice Martha Koome at the Africa Regional Dialogue on Adjudicating Transnational Organised Crime and Illicit Financial Flows in Mombasa.

Koome noted that no nation could singlehandedly fight crimes like drug trafficking, arms dealing, poaching and trafficking, whose frequency has risen in the region thanks to freer movement of people.

“For sure, Justice has no boundaries, so

Common transnational crimes

A recent report by Global Initiative Against Transnational Organised Crime titled “Global Organised Crime Index- A fractured World” ranked Kenya 16 out of 193 countries in the world for organised crime. Kenya tops the nine countries in East Africa.

The report indicates that Kenya’s criminal networks engage in drug trafficking, human trafficking, human smuggling, commodity smuggling, cattle rustling, extortion, burglary, robbery, money laundering, executions, and assassinations.”

we should care the kind of system that is applicable in any country. In fighting crime, we are joined together because we are all seeking justice for our people,” she said.

Justice Susan Okalany of the International Crimes Division High Court, in Uganda, said many of the current transnational crimes are not only complex but also involve dozens of countries. In the case of the 2010 Kampala bombing, she said the case involved Tanzania, Kenya and Congo.

Among the challenges her country faced was difficulties in extraditing suspects from neighbouring nations to face death penalty in Uganda. “The suspect was held in Tanzania and lived in Kenya where he raised finances to fund terror activities through the hawala system. Tanzania was not keen to release a terror suspect to face death penalty in Uganda. The suspect was from Kenya and had been receiving money through the mobile cash transfer system,” she explained.

She added that cases of human trafficking from the region to the Middle East have been on the rise, but they are tougher to fight due to lack of mutual legal assistance with countries like Saudi Arabi. In most cases, this leads to acquittal of suspects.

Tewodros Kebede, the Chief Justice of the Federal Supreme Court of Ethiopia, said countries must cooperate in terms of evidence collection to end transnational crimes.

Further, he said there is need for specialisation, training and sensitisation of judges on the extent and seriousness of the problem.

“Most countries have excellent laws, enforcement is the problem. We also need political commitment for funding and training of prosecutors,” he said.

The forum offered an opportunity to increase collaboration between justice actors in Africa and galvanise their response to transnational crimes. The crimes are one of the most significant challenges confronting not only the regional judicial systems but also the economic and political stability of countries. ■

“When it comes to transboundary organised crimes, it doesn’t matter how countries are well-organised. We can never succeed until we work together,” – Chief Justice Martha Koome.

Huduma Kenya staff celebrates in style customer service week

Huduma Kenya staff celebrated excellence in service delivery during customer service week by marching through the Nairobi central business district and interacting with the public as they thanked them for giving them an opportunity to serve them.

The procession of workers clad in white Huduma branded tops, black trousers and skirts, and led by CEO Ben Kai Chilumo, was flagged off at Harambee A House by the PS State Department for Public Service Amos Gathecha.

The PS said excellent customer service was a constitutional right and assured the public of exceptional government services from Huduma Centres.

The PS, Gender and Affirmative Action Veronica Nduva commended Huduma Centres for establishing counselling desks and tele-counselling facilities, adding that the services have played a crucial role in combating gender based violence.

She said her department would continue to support Huduma Centres to ensure more Kenyans accessed counselling services.

In bid to better service delivery, Huduma Kenya is currently offering Service By Appointment (SBA) and Track My Service (TMS) online services to avoid congestion in its centres.

SBA platform ensures individuals effortlessly schedule appointments for a wide array of services available at Huduma Centres for a smoother and more organised experience, eliminating the challenge of long queues and unpredictable wait times.

On the other hand, the TMS revolutionises the way customers engage with government agencies. The platform enables customers to monitor the progress of their service applications remotely. ■

Talk about rabbit feeds...

Rabbits love greens like ‘sukuma wiki’ and legumes like alfafa, which is a good source of protein. They should also be fed on commercial pellets. Examples of fodder you should offer them are:

- Sukuma wiki (collard greens)
- Sweet potato vines
- Carrot (leaves and tubers)
- Black jack
- Macdonald’s eye

Are there weeds that aren’t good for rabbits?

Yes. Not every plant is beneficial to rabbits as feeds; some are poisonous including:

- Tomatoes
- Egg plant
- Managu leaves
- Euphorbia
- Aloe vera
- Lantana camara
- Mexican marigold
- Datura
- Wandering jew
- Hyacinth
- Irish potatoes

What about hay and green vegetables?

You can contact the National Rabbit Conservation and Training Institute (NRB&TC) in Ngong, Kajiado county. There is also Kimose Farm in Baringo, Matuga Farm in Kwale and Marimba Farm in Meru. Apart from these government farms, quality breeds can also be sourced from some trusted farmers who work with the NRB&TC.

Can I make my own rabbit pellets?

Yes, if you know how do it because that saves costs. Don’t compromise on quality though. The main ingredients are usually grass, vegetables, bran, hay, alfalfa, maize and other necessary matters like limestone, vitamin C and mineral premix, mixed in specific ratios.

Tell me about the feeding schedule and recommended quantities

Rabbits are normally fed twice a day with water offered ad libitum or made available throughout. A kit needs 45 grammes of pellets per day, and a mature animal 150 grammes. Extensive feeding can be done using green fodder and edible weeds, which can sometimes be supplemented by concentrates. Fresh succulent greens should not be fed directly to the rabbits, as too much water in the greens leads to bloating. Wilt the fodder for a few hours first before consumption.

At what age do they start breeding?

For both males and females, puberty or sexual maturity is attained at between five and six months. This variation depends on the breed, feeding level and management. That is, the larger the breed, the longer the maturity and vice versa. Similarly, rabbits fed wholly on pellets mature early while those fed on greens only take longer.

Some tips for successful rabbit breeding....

Keep up-to-date breeding records and replace the buck every year. Proper housing is essential and breeding does and bucks should always be housed in separate compartments. During mating, the doe should be taken to the buck. If done the other way, the female is likely to fight the buck. The farmer should not worry as to when the doe will show heat signs. The heat in rabbits is as a result of external stimulus such as the presence of the buck. During mating, the farmer should wait to witness the service. If the serving is successful, the male falls back.

After mating, then what?

The gestation period is between 28 and 32 days. In-kit (pregnancy) can be confirmed three weeks after mating by palpating the abdomen to feel the lining of the young embryo. Another method of checking on the in-kit is by taking the doe back to the same male after two weeks of mating. If it is in-kit, the doe will make noise and refuse to be mated, if not it will accept the male to serve again.

The Cabinet said its decision to rescind the sale was due to governance challenges arising from the nationalisation of Telkom Kenya and concerns about the company's commercial viability. Further, the Cabinet lifted a ban on mining using traditional means and asked the over 800,000 artisanal miners to form cooperatives.

Mr Maraga, who chairs the team, said it had come up with three key recommendations that are expected to have far-reaching implications to the National Police Service, the Prisons Service and the National Youth Service. One of them is that the Services be moved to the security sector in regard to remuneration. Justice Maraga announced that the taskforce will present its final report within a month. The President also endorsed the creation of two entry levels into the National Police Service: at Constable and Cadet levels, whose requirements will be defined by police service commission.

Kenya's textile industry revival gains momentum with Indian partnership

BY JOSEPH NG'ANG'A (KNA)

The Government quest to revive the textile industry in the country has received a boost through the establishment of business collaborations with Indian-based textile machinery and technological companies.

The collaboration is being fostered through the ITME Africa and Middle East 2023 exhibition which shall showcase a complete range of innovative textiles technology and engineering in multiple chapters of the textile technology.

The exhibition shall take place from 30th November - 2nd December 2023 at the Kenyatta International Convention Centre (KICC).

A total of 23 participating countries other than India will be participating and they include Austria, Benin, China, Egypt, Ethiopia, Germany, Ghana, Italy, Jordan, Kenya, Nigeria, Rwanda, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Taiwan, Togo, Turkey, Tunisia, Uganda, United States of America and Zambia.

Secretary (PS) Juma Mukhwana said the revival of the textile industry is well on course adding that this year, the government has supported farmers to grow 40,000 acres of cotton and the next season the plan is to increase the acreage to 100,000.

Speaking during the pre-exhibition press conference, Mukhwana said "I don't want you to be just exhibiting here. I want you to open a warehouse of Indian machinery in Kenya. We want an outlet for Indian textile technology here."

The PS explained that the machinery used in manufacturing does not attract taxes from the government and thus urged the investors to establish their textile factories in Kenya.

"The biggest manufacturers in Kenya are those of Indian origin and our manufacturing story is not complete without the Indian dimension," said the PS.

Mukhwana opined that the last wave of industrialization is coming to Africa and that the continent is ripe for investments since it has young and skilled labour and raw materials. He explained that it would not be affordable to take the raw materials from Africa to India for manufacturing then bring them back as finished goods.

"If you manufacture in Kenya, you will have access to a duty and quota free East African Community (EAC) market of over 400 million people comprising Uganda, Tanzania, Rwanda, Burundi, DRC, South Sudan and Somalia is soon joining," said Mukhwana. The PS added that Kenya, through the African Growth and Opportunity Act (AGOA), has been given access to the US market duty and quota free and that it has not even reached one per cent of that market saying that if the manufacturers set up shop in the country, they will also have access to the US market.

"Through AGOA, we have 31 textile companies based in Kenya that are making top brands like Gucci. Kenya is the leading exporter of textile into the US although our market is so small," the PS said.

CS encourages governors to boost local economies through industrialization

BY DAVIS LANGAT (KNA)

The outgoing Cabinet Secretary for Trade, Investments, and Industry, Moses Kuria, has issued a challenge to county governments, urging them to make industrial production a top priority as a means of bolstering their local economies.

To accomplish this, Kuria encouraged governors to establish goals for the production and value addition of various local goods. This approach, he argued, would help reduce reliance on imports and, in turn, tackle economic challenges while conserving foreign exchange for the country.

Mr Kuria, who made the remarks during the launch of Homa Bay County Aggregation and Industrial Park in Riwa, Karachuoyo Constituency hailed Governor Gladys Wanga for her commitment in the realisation of industrial take off in the county, saying that it was in line with the government's bottom-up transformation agenda.

The CS consequently called on investors to establish firms for production of different products in rural areas.

Mr Kuria said the industrial parks which offer a platform where several industries engage in production of different goods should be put to good use, adding, "counties need to set targets for production of goods and compete among themselves which is the only way they will be sustained," he said.

Kuria said the time for political fights is over and it is time to address challenges afflicting the electorate.

"Leaders should unite for the sake of development. Politics should only be allowed when campaign season is near," Mr Kuria said.

The CS was accompanied by Homa Bay Governor Gladys Wanga, Woman Representative Joyce Osogo and Karachuoyo MP Adipo Okumu at the launch of the industrial park that measures 353 acres.

Homa Bay will use the facility to exploit production of edible oil and cotton. Already farmers have expressed willingness to produce crops such as oil palm that will be used in the production of edible oil.

Other crops that will be processed at the park include sweet potato, pineapple and others.

Mr Kuria said some investors have already shown willingness to set up firms at the park who includes an investor who wants to establish a cotton ginnyer.

"Another investor wants to engage in fish production by making boats. It is an opportunity that the county government should take advantage of," the CS said.

Governor Wanga said the launch of the industrial park comes at a time when her administration is finalising the registration of farmers.

She said Homa Bay has registered more than 220,000 farmers which was so far the highest in the country.

Ms Wanga said they will be supported to make them more productive.

Digital innovation shines at fourth annual Pwani Innovation Week

The Fourth Edition of the annual Pwani Innovation Week in Mombasa ended with amplified excitement and achievements.

The digital innovation week organized by Swahili pot hub showcases and celebrates milestones in the country's digital innovation ecosystem. It involves participants from across the country and aims to promote discourses on enhancing digital literacy and adaptation.

The event features insightful presentations and innovative displays from influential digital players and key stakeholders in the innovation ecosystem. Collaborations and synergies are created as the event brings together digital policymakers, startups, corporates, intermediary organizations across the country.

The Swahili pot hub is an initiative that seeks to foster and promote youth entrepreneurship and innovation in the coastal region.

Set up as labs equipped with technology, WIFI hotspot, software and networks, the Swahili Pot has been designed as a technology and arts open community workspace at the Swahili cultural centre for ease of access to youth from all walks of life.

Patron and chairman of Swahili pot Hub Mahmoud Noor said they are excited to highlight the region's digital aspirations and the initiatives being undertaken to meet them.

Mr. Noor hailed the weeklong technology and innovation forum as a huge success with many partners, technology vendors, startups, exhibitors and service providers in attendance.

He said the innovation hub with free high-speed internet is designed to avail space and equipment for young people to develop innovative ICT products and applications from conception, production and marketing.

"This annual innovation platform allows various actors to learn, share insights and create critical connections and networks to enhance the progress of the ICT landscape," he said during an interview.

Maralal international camel extravaganza returns three years later

When thinking of some of the prominent tourist sporting attractions in Kenya, one might immediately picture the Rhino Charge, featuring off-road vehicles navigating rugged bushy terrains, or the thrilling hot air balloon flights over the Maasai Mara Game Reserve. However, Samburu County recently hosted a truly unique sporting event, the Maralal International Camel Derby, which stands as the only one of its kind in Africa.

Phillip Leitore Samburu Chief Officer (CO) for Tourism said the camel derby is making a comeback after a three-year absence following the Covid-19 pandemic outbreak which restricted local and international travel and public gatherings.

The four-day extravaganza, which started at Yare Safari Club and camping site in Maralal town, attracted visitors from USA, Canada, Australia, Saudi Arabia and Germany, he said. "We will use this year's 31st Edition of the camel derby under the theme 'Promotion of Sport tourism, Conservation and Enhanced Peaceful Cultural Interaction' to further market Samburu's, culture and tourist attractions and as a gateway to camel counties of northern Kenya," the CO added.

Maralal, which is the headquarters of Samburu County Government, is a fast growing satellite town which is 350 kilometers from Nairobi City and it is accessible by tarmac road through the Nyahururu-Rumuruti-Maralal road.

The drive from Rumuruti is comparable to a game drive since one can spot the Big Five while driving through private wildlife sanctuaries of Laikipia County.

Samburu County's Director of Tourism Mathew Leakono said the major highlights of the event were the 21-kilometer professional camel race, the 10-kilometer amateur race and the triathlon where participants started with camel racing, cross-country and then finished with a bicycle race.

There was an array of corporate exhibition tents and cultural exhibitions from the communities living in Samburu County and a real traditional wedding ceremony from both the Samburu and Turkana communities.
